

Let People Under 65 Buy Into Medicare

I am writing to call on all members of Congress to support a measure to be passed in reconciliation of the health care bill, to provide that anyone should have the OPTION to buy into the Medicare system.

This makes such simple, common sense, who as a member of Congress could justifiably oppose it? Even the Republicans say they don't want to weaken Medicare. If people younger than 65 are allowed to buy into the economical and efficient Medicare system we have, with the lesser expense of providing them with whatever care they need, this can only make Medicare stronger.

This MUST be an option for the American people, regardless of whether the current health care bill passes or not. And no member of Congress should vote for the current bill unless there is an iron clad agreement that such a Medicare option will be made available, to go into effect as soon as possible.
