

Who is waging the real war on Christmas, which right wingers are so fixated on railing against, as if such a thing were even going on? Are they not the people who every day of year betray the spirit of the holidays by increasing the misfortune of the most disadvantaged?

Who are the members of Congress who are so driven to cut the food stamp program without which children will go hungry.

Who are the members of Congress who are so determined to shutdown Medicare and social security, without which we are a country without mercy?

Who are the members of Congress who begrudge our lowest wage workers from even receiving a fair, living wage, which any decent business worthy of being in business must be able to afford.

In short, who are the members of Congress whose core agenda is to cut every possible safety net for the poor, while the rich continue to get even more rich?

Well, if the stocking fits, we have a vision of Christmas future for you . . . losing your very next election.
